Modern slavery can take various forms such as servitude, forced or compulsory labour and human trafficking. Ultraframe (UK) Limited continues to promote awareness and re-enforce a zero-tolerance approach to modern slavery through training and communication.

We maintain a suite of policies that set expectations for ethical conduct, including our Modern Slavery Policy, Ethical and Environmental Code of Conduct for Suppliers of Goods and Services, Whistleblowing Policy. These policies guide our actions, inform supplier requirements, and reinforce our zero-tolerance approach to exploitation.

To mitigate risk, we conduct proportionate due diligence on all relevant suppliers through pre-screening, risk assessments, contract controls, and audit activities, escalating to corrective action plans where needed. Our risk assessment processes enable us to identify high-risk regions, products, and labour practices, and to implement targeted mitigation measures. We measure the effectiveness of our actions using key performance indicators, including supplier assessments completed, audit findings addressed, grievance reports received, and staff training participation. Outcomes are reviewed annually to support continuous improvement.

Training on modern slavery is provided to relevant staff, particularly those involved in procurement, supply chain management, and supplier engagement, ensuring they understand how to identify and escalate concerns.
